This core course for the Graduate Certificate in Environmental Communication and Leadership provides leadership and communication skills to early career scientists who are motivated to become agents of change.